Environmental Education... Serious Fun

Books are part of the NSW Premier's Reading Challenge

Caren Trafford, author and environmental educator has created and delivers stimulating, exciting and thought-provoking presentations for Years 3-7. Through her presentations, students are encouraged to become environmental heroes and help save our precious planet. Using science and humour, today's important environmental messages are brought to life and students are challenged to make a difference.

Students, teachers and parents, are captivated by the unique narrative non-fiction style of teaching the critical issues of environmental management & science. She has been the author-in-residence for the Miles Franklin Literary Camp and presented to more than 6,000 students across Australia.

Why not invite her to your school and find out how to join the team of environmental heroes?

Topics covered include:

Worms
Water
Waste
Poo
Recycling
Renewable Energy
Weather and Climate Change

"Your books are absolutely fantastic! I have been trialling them ... the teachers love them... and I think they should be in all the schools on Earth" Molly Harriss-Olson, Director EcoFutures

"Thank you so much for your fabulous contribution to our kids and our wider community. We had a fantastic day of learning for everyone and there is much 'a-buzz' about as the interest continues to flow..." Helen Wardega, Principal, Picnic Point Public School

Description of School & Conference Talks

Caren Trafford speaks passionately about how everyone - but especially our students - can make a difference in the world. In an interactive presentation, tailored from 30-45 minutes, she talks about how she became known as the 'worm poo lady' and how her characters have been created to inspire students to become environmental heroes at school and home.

With a large pictorial content and a myriad of interesting facts and questions, Caren challenges her audience to think about the environment and what they can each do to make a difference.

Dear Caren,

I enjoyed your book immensely. I feel that it is an inspiration to all young writers and shows how much humans can do for this world, animals and more so worms. I hope that someday humans and worms will live together and we will understand the worm population alot better than we do now. Your imagination is wonderful. Please KEEP WRITING! Love
